ANNOUNCING A NEW BOOK:

Visual Consulting: Designing & Leading Change
by David Sibbet & Gisela Wendling, PhD

Publication Date: September 25, 2018

The Grove Consultants International announces the publication of Visual Consulting: Designing & Leading Change by David Sibbet & Gisela Wendling, fourth book in Wiley's Visual Facilitation Series.

Visual Consulting shows how visual facilitation can combine with dialogue and change methods to achieve more creative and sustainable outcomes. The practices that Sibbet and Wendling describe can be applied both to organizational and cross-boundary consulting projects.

Organizations and communities face escalating challenges from climate change, globalization, economic volatility and others. In addition, there is an inherent set of challenges and opportunities in any change process. For people dealing with organizational or community change—driven by new aspirations, shifting circumstances, or developmental opportunities—Visual Consulting provides a rich set of approaches for consciously leading people from initiating to actualizing the change and stepping into “the new.”

The first three books in Wiley's Visual Facilitation Series, written by David Sibbet, define and extend the emerging field of visual facilitation. Visual Meetings was published in 2010, followed by Visual Teams (2011) and Visual Leaders (2012). Extensive translation of the series is seeding worldwide interest in applied design thinking, large-scale visualization, and interactive, immersive experience in tackling the big challenges that organizations and communities face.

Visual Consulting is available for purchase through Amazon as are the other three books in the Wiley Visual Facilitation series: Visual Meetings, Visual Teams, and Visual Leaders.
